

I wish to register a complaint in the strongest possible terms about the Sinclair Broadcasting decision to air clearly partisan programming on the public airwaves immediately before the election.

I request that the Commission demand that Sinclair stations give EQUAL TIME either immediately before or after their blatant attempt to undermine the elections.

I am becoming increasingly disgusted with media outlets who eschew the public trust for the sake of corporate agendas.

Do you think the American public could bring a class-action suit against the media conglomerates for advertising "news" programming that is clearly biased? Isn't that false advertising? Bait and switch? Maybe we should bring a class-action suit against the FCC for allowing this situation to ever get this far.

This Sinclair thing is just the latest example of why re-regulation is needed. It is obvious that many more people are aware of this now. It is time to strengthen ownership rules.
